

EARL BUTZ

Butz defends grain agreement

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

The United States last October announced an agreement under which the Soviet Union obligated itself to purchase at least 6 million tons of wheat and corn each year from the U.S. and could buy up to 2 million more tons of grain without government approval and if the U.S. had at least 225 million tons of grain on hand, the Soviets could buy more grain if needed.

Today, speaking at Emerald Hill, Sec. of Agriculture Earl Butz, said he thought this was a good agreement. The secretary addressed more than 400 persons at a fund-raising coffee and breakfast sponsored by the Whiteside County Committee for President Ford.

In a conference with Butz, this reporter pointed out the United States supplies about 50 per cent of the total grain import needs of the Soviet Union but gets only about 9 per cent of Russian oil exports and asked him why the U.S. could not receive a greater share of the Soviet Union's oil exports to lessen this nation's dependence on the Arab nations for oil imports.

Butz replied the United States sells grain on a world market for the best price which can be obtained and purchases oil supplies on the same basis.

He said he would "almost rather be dependent on the Arabs for oil than on the Russians," but conceded if the Soviets need U.S. food as badly as this nation needs oil, some further areas of agreement might be worked out.

The Soviet Union is the largest single nation oil producer in the world pumping about 9.5 million barrels per day. About 25 per cent of this production is exported and the U.S. imports about 9 per cent of the Russian oil exports.

This is only 3 per cent of the 6.5 million barrels the U.S. imports per day.

Butz commented one reason the embargo against shipment of grain to the Russians in 1975 lasted as long as it did was that President Ford was working on an oil deal with the Soviets.

He declared Ford did the right thing in ordering the embargo, but admitted he would have lifted it sooner than the President did.

Butz charged George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, raised false reasons for supporting the longshoremen's refusal to load ships with grain which were bound for the Soviet Union.

The secretary maintained Meany's reason was not to keep food prices from rising, but rather to get more favorable conditions for the workers.

"The Russians can only handle about 2 million tons of grain per month and we had sold them 6 million tons when the embargo was imposed, that kept them busy for several months, and I don't think we lost any sales of grain in the long run," averred the cabinet member.

Butz's appearance here is part of the fan-out of Ford people to all parts of Illinois, and he spoke more about partisan politics than the nation's agriculture policies.

The secretary credited the past seven years of Republican administrations with getting half a million men out of military service and bringing home prisoners of war.

"No longer pretending the 800 million Chinese do not exist."

"Moving further from armed confrontation and now looking for more areas, of common interests."

"Expanding trade which leads nations away from armed conflicts."

"The U.S. has become the peacemaker in the Middle East and is the only nation which can fill that role."

"No longer are campuses being bombed and down-towns burned."

"For the first time in 25 years young men graduating from high school can plan their futures without being forced to give three years' service to their country."

Butz recalled when President Ford took over, 19 months ago, inflation was rising widely and the country was falling into a recession.

Now, he cited, the rate of inflation has been cut in half and the country is on a "genuine" road to recovery.

The secretary pointed to Ford's 46 vetoes, of which 39 have been sustained, as being one of the important accomplishments of the administration.

"The time is now to stop the growth of government," asserted the secretary, noting it is from the private sector of the economy that taxes and wages are paid, where savings for investment accrue, and where funds come to pay contributions to charitable and religious organizations, and "creates the affluence which the nation enjoys."

Butz maintained people on welfare in the U.S. live better than the top half of the people in all other nations in the world when one considers the living conditions they have and the other refinements of our culture such as television and automobiles.

Butz said he agreed with much of the philosophy of Ronald Reagan, the former Dixonite, who is challenging President Ford for the GOP nomination to run for President, but said he supports Ford because he is "electable."

The Ford cabinet member asserted whenever a political party deviates from the "middle road of American politics," that gives the election to the other party.

He cited 1964, when the Republicans ran Barry Goldwater as one example of "opening the middle and giving the victory to President Johnson." The other instance cited by Butz was in 1972 when the Democrats fielded George McGovern, "which gave the election free to President Nixon."

Butz intimated the nomination of Reagan would open the middle road and assure the Democrats would win in the fall.

The secretary predicted Hubert Humphrey will be the Democratic nominee for President.

The Youth Service Bureau will remain in operation following unanimous approval of a $12,500 budget this morning by Lee County Board members. The action highlighted an abbreviated meeting today which also saw approval of a revised set of rules for conducting board meetings and a $1,000 appropriation to cover travel costs for an upcoming forgery trial.

Action which could result in the lowering of property taxes by eliminating the General Fund levy, due to an excess reserve, was not acted on at today's meeting.

Instead, members of the finance committee, who huddled prior to the outset of the meeting, voted to "further discuss" the ramifications of the measure at a committee meeting March 29.

"The worst thing you can do is eliminate taxes one year and slap it back on the next," Charles Dunphy, District 1, told members of the committee.

The balance in the General Fund as of Dec. 1 was $1.2 million, five times greater than the $242,000 realized from property tax collections.

More than one-third of the excess funds came about as a result of increased interest earned by the county treasurer's office which was not taken into consideration in drafting the budget.

If the tax was abated, it would mean a savings of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $15 on a home valued at $30,000.

Herbert Henning, District 3 finance committee member, called for taking $140,000 in revenue sharing funds out of the General Fund and replenishing the fund with a portion of the excess funds "... and use it (revenue sharing) for what it was intended for."

Dunphy felt the funds should be earmarked for bridge repair. "The next 10 years we'll need a lot of money and we are going to be in a jam," he reasoned, referring to an estimated 50 bridges throughout the county which do not meet state requirements for safety.

All Hardersen, YSB director, made a slide presentation to the board explaining his agency's function with youth.

He noted 54 per cent of refer-als for counseling come from the city of Dixon while 46 per cent come from the county. Hardersen sought approval of $12,500 in "seed money" from the county "without which we cannot get state and federal funds to operate."

Asked what would happen if the request was turned down, Hardersen responded, "a very bleak picture—come Oct. 1 you may not see a Youth Service Bureau."

The YSB request for $9,900 was turned down in budget hearings by the finance committee in September. Hardersen said the increased amount is now needed because of grant monies lost "Without the county support—we can not receive state funds," he reiterated.

Henning took the floor during a question-answer session citing duplication of services. "We have programs in schools for counseling and Sinissippi Mental Health Center for psychological counseling and the health department for a disease prevention program—it seems to me we're duplicating when the taxpayers are already paying for these services."

Hardersen responded: "We go into the community and seek out young people—they are not serving the 450 youngsters out of school in the county—a $40,000 psychologist is not going to drive to Paw Paw to handle a problem—this outreach takes a lot of time and our staff has put in 800 hours of overtime in the past year at no pay."

Michael Heckman, regional superintendent of schools, spoke in support of the services the YSB offers "... the people are the important part—they're providing a very worthwhile service," he said while pledging his support to the program.

David Considine, District 1, discussed a recreation program which the YSB started in Harmon. "It's working well and it would be a shame for it to go down the drain."

After making the statement, Considine made a motion to approve the request out of revenue-sharing funds. Twenty-six yes votes were counted with Irvin Koch, board chairman, and August Gus Frazz, both absent.

State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward got approval to transfer $1,000 from the contingency fund for payment of travel expenses for witnesses called to testify in an upcoming forgery trial involving Steven Gray and Larry Parson. The state's attorney said he has subpoenaed two witnesses from Washington, D.C., one from Detroit and another from Ohio.

The board reappointed Bruce Forster to a five-year term on the zoning Board of Appeals effective April 11.

Warren Faber, District 2, got approval on a revised set of rules to govern board meetings. Changes from the existing policy were voted to make it more convenient for guests to address the board at a specified time "rather than wait all day to get a chance to speak," Faber said.

Other regulations call for mailing of committee meeting minutes to board members before the county board meeting, together with an agenda.

Donald Burke, District 3, got approval to add one regulation calling for a two-thirds vote of the members present to increase amounts in the annual budget.

In other action at today's meeting:

—Approval was given for a special use permit for a mobile home to Marvin Henry and Dorine VanWeelden; Adrian and Edna VanWeelden.

—Agreement was given to pay the county share of bridge repair over Chamberlain Creek on Naylor Road. The county and Nachusa Township will share the $6,000 cost.

—Approval was given for a $30,000 allocation for construction of a bridge on Hoyle Road. The townships of Marion and Harmon are matching the county share of the construction.

—Referred to the Executive Committee a request from Sheriff Ray Nehring calling for the hiring of an additional deputy. The sheriff cited increased crime in the eastern part of the county and a need to establish zone patrols in all areas as reasons for the additional man.

Nine Lee County farm houses hit in burglary spree

Nine houses on farms in rural Lee County were extensively damaged by burglars in a crime rampage Monday afternoon. "This was the worst damage to homes and crimes at one time that I have seen in my 13 years of experience in law enforcement," said Lee County Sheriff Raymond Nehring, as his detectives continued their investigations today.

Burglars began the series of crimes in DeKalb County, where one home was found victimized. They then moved west into Lee County on U.S. 30, stopping at farm houses along the way. The crime path led along U.S. 30 to U.S. 51 where the burglars headed north toward Rochelle.

Deputies believe that the criminals stopped at houses along the way to ask for gas. The houses which were unoccupied were entered.

The first house to be entered in Lee County was the Douglas Fyke residence, Rt. 1, Lee. The thieves are believed to have been there at approximately 1 p.m.

In succession, other residences of Rick and Nora Beck, Paw Paw Road and U.S. 30; Amos Prayher, 2½ miles east of the U.S. 30, U.S. 51 intersection; Mrs. Charles Place, ½ mile east of U.S. 51; were entered, robbed and damaged.

The homes along U.S. 51 which were victimized were those of: Ray Donoho, Rt. 1, Steward; Duane Truckenbrod, Rt. 1, West Brooklyn; Harvey Gittleton, rural Steward; Shirley Herrman, Rt. 3, Rochelle; and Roy Landecker, U.S. 51 and Conrad Road, which was the last house entered shortly after 4 p.m.

Nehring said that items taken from the homes included: Guns, money, many pieces of jewelry, a safe, and watches. He added that the homes were heavily damaged as the vandals broke TV's and stereo equipment, discharged fire arms in the houses, and tipped over mirrors and other expensive pieces of furniture.

Investigators said the criminals were drinking beer, stolen from one refrigerator and left at various crime scenes. Due to the unexplainably vicious damage, estimated in the tens of thousands of dollars, deputies have theorized that the thieves were using drugs.

A white sports car, with a blue stripe on its side, was seen at several locations at the time of the crimes and is being sought in connection with the incidents.

Sheriff Nehring is asking that any information on such a vehicle, or any other item in connection with the offense, be brought to his attention.

Nehring plea for additional deputies

In a letter to the Lee County Board today Sheriff Raymond Nehring sought one or two deputies be additionally allocated to his patrol force.

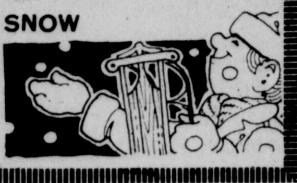

"We simply don't have enough men to patrol along the more than 700 miles of Lee County roads," Nehring explained. The sheriff pointed to the Monday robbing and vandalizing of nine Lee County homes as an example of the growing crime problem locally and added that he felt such problems should be met by a stronger law enforcement force.

What's inside

Dead wolf found

Two rural Sterling residents, returning from a hunting trip Monday, came across a dead wolf lying along a highway near a stream in Bureau County.

Richard G. Winstead, Rt. 4, Sterling, said that he noticed the wolf just off the road as he was driving north of Bradford. The wolf, believed to be a Canadian timber wolf, was apparently killed by a car. Officials said that the appearance of timber wolves is a rare occurrence in Illinois. "We have never had a report of one around here," said Jim Liston, head of the local conservation district. He added the wolf is listed as extinct in Illinois since 1900.

The timber wolf is presently on the list of endangered species. The wolf, which once was abundant in the Great Plains region of America, has been pushed to the point of exinction by civilization. Efforts on the part of conservation groups to help the animal survive in the United States have been largely unsuccessful. The hunting of wolves, once believed to be dangerous predators, is now prohibited, Liston said.

The wolf found along Ill. 88, north of Bradford, weighed 90 pounds, according to Winstead. A measurement revealed that the wolf stood 36 inches tall and stretched 69 inches from tail to nose.

Liston reported that the carcass would be transported to the State Museum in Springfield for research and preservation. Among the questions scientists will be trying to answer will be: Where did the animal come from? How did it survive? What food did it eat? and, exactly how did it die?

Thoughts on government

We have a system of grants-in-aid that has over 1,000 different programs, each with its own requirement as voted by your Congress.

In the health field alone there are 230 different federal programs. There are 1,240 federal advisory boards and committees that the estimated cost is $100 billion a year. Just think, these people you have elected to high public office have seldom had any experience in business and yet they tell you they know more about spending your money than you do. They say they will spend your cash to create full employment. A Washington news item says the Housing and Urban Development would release $264,000 over the next two years to help moderate income families to buy homes.

They make great claims as to how it will improve business and create more employment of the unemployed. What is your thought about government full employment? They pay high wages so union bosses will not be provoked. This takes money from the taxpayer who could spend it himself.

Full employment can be brought about by prices and cost in a workable equilibrium. Partial unemployment could be brought about by all states having a law that would eliminate cash fines. All crimes would be punished by so many hours of labor in the community where the crime was committed. If prisoners refused to work or escaped from the work job they would be put in solitary confinement for twice the time they were sentenced on the job, when caught.

What would be the type of jobs? The cities of Russia and China have underground tunnels connecting large workrooms, sleeping quarters, toilets, storage space for food, to protect the people from nuclear bombs.

McNamara and Kissinger stopped all preparation for the protection of American citizens.

All who disobeyed our laws would be sentenced to prepare these underground bombproof escape rooms. We need these protection rooms and this type of law might make us more careful of what we do illegally.

Anyway, it would be a vast improvement on the wasteful law your Congress votes for.

Newspapers and TV are continually puffing up Gerald Ford, saying how hard he works for the good of the United States. They never mention his socialistic accomplishments. The type of men he has named on committees to give the Panama Canal to the communistic government of Panama, or the socialists to create better relations with Castro. Ford's cabinet has one conservative, while the rest call themselves liberals, but the schemes they promote are socialistic.

Politics is a game of camouflage, trying to fool the voters, and they succeed.

People say, who can I trust? Well, the man you can rely on is the man who relies on himself. He is the man of character. It is up to you to decide who they are. My thoughts are, Ronald Reagan has relied on himself all his life.

Illinois 'beauty contest'

In presidential elections, Illinois is one of our bellwether states. It has supported every winning candidate since Warren G. Harding in 1920. But the Illinois presidential primary has never been decisive in choosing either party's nominee.

One reason is the early filing date, which scares off a lot of candidates who want more time to make up their minds. Another reason is the fact that the party machines have traditionally elected their own delegates. The preferential poll is just a beauty contest, imposing no obligation on delegates to support any candidate. In 1972, Illinois was the scene of Edmund Muskie's only really solid victory, but one much cared.

As any reader of license plates knows, Illinois is the "Land of Lincoln." More to the point, Illinois is also a land of tough, patronage-minded politicians, the home of Richard J. Daley's Democratic machine and the equally fearsome apparatus of the state's conservative Republicans.

Among most polls here, patronage is a way of life, and between elections the leaders of both parties can live together quite comfortably, sharing the spoils.

Outright thievery exists here too: in the 1950s, a Republican State Auditor stole $150,000 and in 1970 Democratic Secretary of State died leaving $800,000 in cash in shoeboxes in his dingy Springfield hotel room. The most widespread corruption exists probably in Chicago and Cook County. In the last few years, aggressive Republican prosecutors have won convictions against major figures in the Daley machine, including the County Clerk, the City Council president and former Gov. Otto Kerner.

Even Mayor Daley has been called on for explanations; he had admitted, for example, that he channeled hundreds of thousands of insurance contracts to a firm that employs one of his sons.

In short, Mayor Daley's machine—the last patronage-oriented, old-fashioned ward-based political organization in the country—is in bad shape.

In terms of the state's Democratic delegation, Daley is likely to have less say than might be expected. Even in 1972, McGovern and Muskie candidates carried most of the suburban congressional districts, and there is plenty of reason to believe that organization choices can be beaten downstate. That leaves the seven Chicago districts, and two of these—the Lakefront 9th and the South Side 1st—are sure to elect independents, leaving the Daley organization just five districts.

Past elections: In 1972, Richard Nixon defeated George McGovern by 59 to 41 per cent. In 1968, Nixon won 47 per cent of the vote, Humphrey 44 per cent and George Wallace 8 per cent.

Past primaries: In the 1972 Democratic primary, Edmund Muskie beat George McGovern by 63 to 37 per cent. Richard Nixon won 97 per cent of the vote in the Republican primary.

'Secret' logic of curbing CIA abuse

By DON OAKLEY

Almost as if nothing had come to light in recent months about secret, illegal activities by the CIA and FBI at home and abroad, President Ford has actually proposed that the best way to regulate the intelligence community and correct its abuses is to permit it to operate in even greater secrecy.

Legislation he has suggested to Congress would make it a crime for any employee or former employee of the government or its contractors possessing "information relating to intelligence sources and methods" to disclose such information to anyone else. It is, in effect, an official secrets act, all-embracing it could cover anything the government chose to have it cover.

Curiously, in what some see as an attempt to allay the fears of the press, only the leaker of secrets would be subject to punishment, not the receiver. But even if the Justice Department and the courts were to observe the distinction in the event of prosecution against a leaker, the certain result would be to ensure that the only information the public received about what its government was doing in the intelligence field would be what the government decided it should receive.

Trust me, the President says, to keep the cloak and dagger boys in line and to guard the public weal. Asked what guarantee the public would have that he and his successors would do that, he replies, "I would hope the American people will elect a president who will not abuse that responsibility."

One thing we have learned, however, is that not even the chief executive always knows what is going on, and the performance of the last two presidents alone suggests that Mr. Ford's hope would be, at best, an uncertain one on which to rest our freedoms. The bitter struggle the administration waged last year to withhold information from congressional investigators is proof enough of that.

It can be persuasively argued that had the kind of authority President Ford requests existed in 1972, Richard Nixon might easily, and quite legally, have quashed the Watergate investigation—in the interests, of course, of "national security."

No one wants this country's intelligence apparatus to be crippled. In the kind of world we live in, it constitutes our first line of defense. Nor is there any question that the need for secrecy about legitimate "intelligence sources and methods" is as vital as the need for secrecy about the sailing routes of Polaris submarines or the nation's contingency plans in the vent of an attack.

But there is secrecy and then there is secrecy, and unfortunately the first use to which governments have always employed secrecy is not against their enemies but against their own citizens. The difference between a democracy and a tyranny is that in the latter it is done as a matter of course; in the former it is a constant danger which only an informed public can guard against.

Would Americans be better off if they had remained in ignorance about certain covert activities of the CIA—the assassination plots against foreign leaders, the channelling of millions of dollars in attempts to influence the politics of other countries? Has their exposure weakened the United States or diminished its real security in any way?

Those who would answer yes, or who believe that the press enjoys perhaps a little too much freedom in this country, need to be reminded of a truth someone pointed out at the time of the Pentagon Papers affair:

There are any number of countries in the world where the government has taken away the liberties of the people. There is no country where the press has ever taken away the liberties of the people.

State lets schools down, financially

The financial problems of Illinois school districts are much more complex than what is suggested by the governor's budget message. The State of Illinois embarked upon a new plan for financing its schools three years ago. While the state has added huge sums of money for school funding—the state has not provided enough money to fulfill the promises of that plan.

In order for the state to meet its minimal commitments to local school districts, a $393-million increase is needed for next year. This is $244 million more than what the governor is recommending. Obviously, the schools are going to suffer seriously from this $244-million deficiency because—among other things—the $149-million increase recommended by the governor has to cover increases in teacher retirement costs and a host of expensive new programs which have been recently mandated by the state. It remains to be seen how the $149 million will be allocated, but it cannot all be available for direct aid to local school districts.

The result of this deficiency in state aid is that more and more school districts will be cutting staffs, eliminating programs, freezing salaries, and asking voters to approve increases in property tax rates.

We know that school boards will do their best to make cost reductions in ways that do the least harm to children. In many cases, however, there will be no way to avoid such harm unless local voters approve huge tax increases or unless the State can find more money to help the schools. Without this additional help, schools will be dropping courses, decreasing the number of teachers, and even closing some school buildings.

We also know that the militant teacher unions will make the most of this unfortunate situation by rallying their members against reductions in staff and the freezing of salaries.

We encourage school boards to involve citizens—parents of school children, in particular—in evaluating their financial problems and in finding solutions that do the least harm to their educational programs.

Abortion topic resurfaces again

Abortion, that controversial topic, that just won't go away was the subject of Don Oakley's March 1 column entitled "Ford on abortion." Unfortunately, Mr. Oakley did not enlighten us on the subject, but instead continued some of the misconceptions and prejudices that have been around since the Supreme Court decisions of Jan. 22, 1973.

First, Mr. Oakley implies that the Supreme Court banned abortions in the last three months of pregnancy, except in cases to save the mother's life. Actually the Supreme Court said that the states, may, if they choose, ban abortions in the last trimester, but, of course, they don't have to.

Second, Mr. Oakley states that a complete ban on abortions such as with a Constitutional amendment would result in "a return to backstreet butchery, (a highly emotive phrase for illegal abortions), abortion for the rich but not for the poor, increasing disrespect for the law."

What we have now is legalized killing (a child aborted legally is just as dead as one aborted illegally), the rich still having all the things that the poor will never have, and an increasing disrespect for human life.

Our most fundamental "right" is the "right to life," and this is the basis for all other laws. The disrespect for human life that is resulting from our "abortion on demand mentality" should be of utmost concern to all of us.

Finally, Mr. Oakley, the world will never be perfect, but to offer unborn children as a sacrifice to the desires of those who do not want them is no way to make it better.

Margaret Brechon

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON (NEA)— In their effort to put the best face to Gerald Ford's less than smashing impact on the early primary campaigning, the President's people are blaming that convenient villain, Richard M. Nixon. In this case the M stands for meddler.

Generously indignant, White House employees suggest that Nixon's trip to China has reminded voters of the recent Republican past and thereby interrupted Ford's attempt to convince the populace that he is brave, loyal, trustworthy, obedient and, don't forget, reverent.

It isn't the first time the Nixon name has been used to explain away the negatives of Jerry Ford's crusade for sainthood. From the beginning of his unelected administration, the President through his apologists has whispered that the Nixon legacy and the Nixon apparition are at the bottom of the Decent One's most vexing troubles.

First there was the Nixon fallout to endure, then there were the Nixon holdovers, and through it all the Ford forces say there has been the Nixon-poisoned atmosphere in which the nurturing of effective leadership is all but impossible. The White House says Ford was blackened by Nixon in pardoning him and from then on the benefactor's ghost has been everywhere detrimental. "The greatest problem we have," said a Ford ally recently, "is trying to get rid of the totally false notion that this is a Ford-Nixon executive branch."

Forgetting for the moment that President Ford would still be Congressman Ford were it not for Dick Nixon, there is some truth in the Administration's insistence that the latter is the former's everlasting low blow. To the extent Ford is the chosen successor of and by the most denigrated President in American history, he suffers wrongly from associated guilt.

Nixon no albatross around Ford's neck

Nonetheless, there are limits to this kind of cause and effect. Clearly, Ford's belief that a globetrotting Nixon is costing him votes is absurd, it is in fact an unworthy excuse.

It can't be overlooked here that Ford came by his excuse honestly. Perhaps not bright enough to create such complicated reasoning himself, he has been assisted by a popular sentiment which has been almost unanimous in opposing the Nixon China trip.

For weeks Washington observers have been seeing only mischief in the event, drawing preposterously ominous innuendos from it, i.e. Nixon would not only hurt Ford in Peking, but U.S. foreign policy as well. In listing the risks of Nixon's visit, pundits have suggested every evil save the possibility he would bring home some new form of Asian flu.

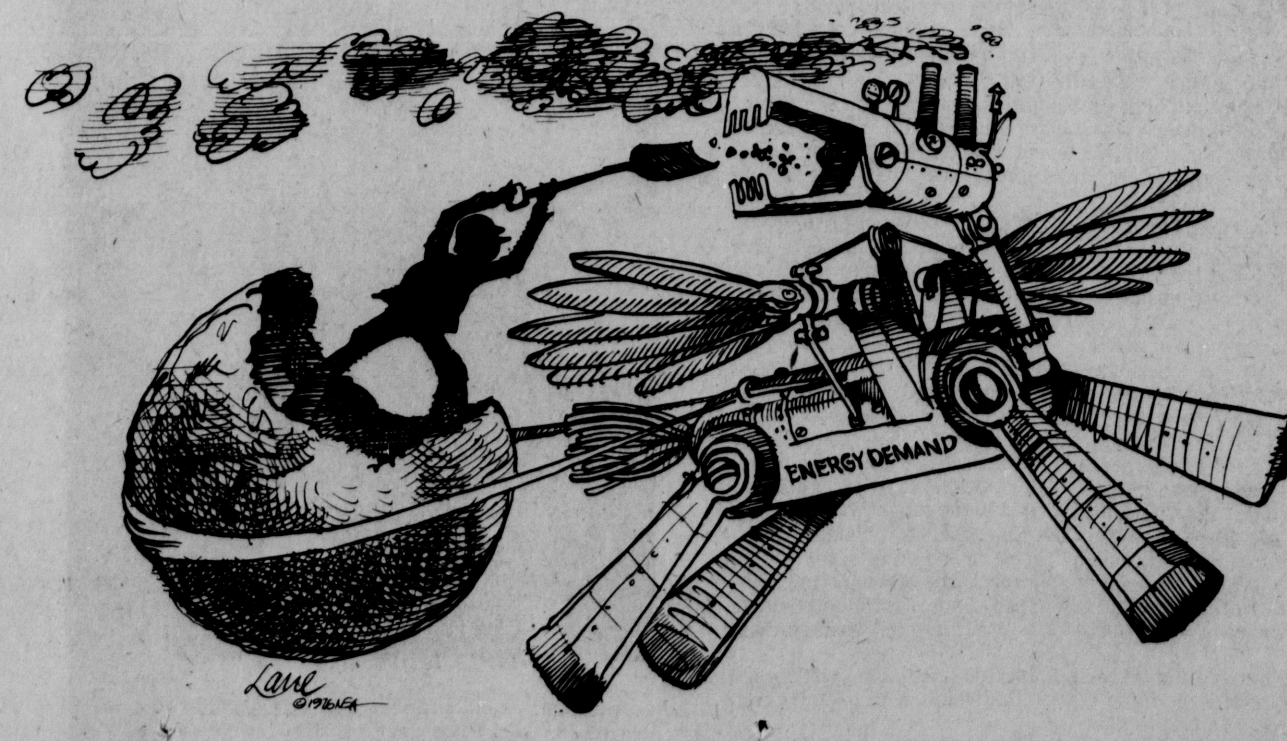

Well, humbug Nixon's journey was little more than an attempt by a defeated man to prove to the world he still has friends. Surely even his bitterest enemies can understand the pathos involved. Dishonor aside, he's only been discredited, not convicted, and he can't be fairly condemned for massaging his spirits. By the way, the alternative to his re-emergence into the daylight of reality is his continued isolation in San Clemente, which the pundits also condemn.

It is evident now that Richard Nixon is neither going to go away forever nor live among us as a properly confessed and remorseful sinner. He is going to march to his own drum, wherever it leads, hence the nation is going to have to come to terms with this inevitability.

He is going to travel, and has a right to it. He is going to make money with his memoirs, for that is the capitalist way. One day, like Herbert Hoover, he may even become a curiosity that transcends public bitterness, and we will have to accept him as sentimental Sunday supplement fare. To simply continue to hate him because God doesn't strike him down, or to go on reacting in heat whenever he displays his arrogant jowls would hurt him less than us. He did wrong, but he was brought down for it and then banished. Let him go.

Better we should concentrate on the wicked motives of the leaders still in power. Gerald Ford's, for example. One can forgive his ineptitude, even his overbearing piety, but not his perfidious alibis. The trouble with President Ford is President Ford, not Richard Nixon, and propaganda to the contrary should not again be raised in the election.

The Doctor Says: Chronic cases of hives difficult to treat

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—Will you please tell me something to do for hives. My doctor can't find the cause so the only thing he gave me was tranquilizers to take so I can sleep when they get real bad. Even the tranquilizers do not help sometimes. One night last week I was a solid mass of hives over most of my body and couldn't sleep till after 2 a.m. They come and go so I had no more till last night when I had a few and more this morning. Is there a cure for them when the cause is not known? It seems after I have had a real bad attack they don't return for about a week. I have had them off and on for a month now. Please help me if you can.
DEAR READER — Recurrent, chronic type hives are difficult to treat, particularly if the cause can't be established.

Hives are an allergic reaction. The red, swollen area is caused by release of chemicals within the body that act on the tiny capillaries and let fluid leak out of the circulation and produce irritations.
Perhaps the most common cause of hives is food allergy. Finding out which foods cause the allergy is another matter. One can also have hives from things inhaled or from contact with things one is allergic to, such as animal dander or as a generalized response to bites from various insects. Hives also occur as part of the picture in certain infections such as virus diseases or in response to intestinal parasites. I hasten to add that I doubt that's your problem.
The allergic-type hive response can occur as a peculiar sensitivity to cold, heat or sun rays. They also develop as a result of certain drugs.

Since you have been having recurring hives fairly regularly for a month I would think that you fall into the group of chronic hives.
The usual treatment for hives is to give antihistamines because they reduce the allergic response. They will also make you sleepy. In more severe cases that don't respond to antihistamines, four days or more of Prednisone, one of the cortisone hormones, is used.
It may be necessary to put you on what doctors call an elimination diet which literally will remove all food that might possibly be inducing an allergic response and then gradually adding foods by groups. All spices, of course, are eliminated as well. The elimination diet technique may never tell you exactly which foods you were allergic to but it might stop your problem. Of course if you do identify which foods you are allergic to that may enable you to avoid these entirely and thereby avoid hives. In the event that you inadvertently consume any of these, taking one of the antihistamines immediately may help avoid developing hives.
If you should be having hives because of exposure to cold the only possible solution is to avoid it.

Irene Pettiti, RN, takes Mayor William Naylor's blood pressure to kick off Nurses' Week activities. Illinois Nurses' Week has been proclaimed locally by Mayor Naylor and, to celebrate the observance, District 13 of the Illinois Nurses Association (INA) will sponsor a dinner and style show Thursday at the Skyline Lounge at 6:30 p.m.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Palmyra Unit

The Palmyra Extension Unit will meet with the South Dixon Unit at the Loveland Community Building Thursday at 12:30 p.m., for a scramble luncheon. Members are asked to bring a dish of food and their own table service. "Mexican Cookery," will be the afternoon lesson when Mexican foods being prepared and discussed and tasted.

There will be a display and members are asked to bring any item pertaining to the Mexican culture.

Wa-tan-ye

This week has been proclaimed National Wa-tan-ye Week in recognition of the hours of service contributed by the more than 1,200 members of the 41 clubs that are located in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Virginia.

Each club member is devoted to its community by giving time, energy and financial support, said Mrs. Paul Graham, association president from Savanna. She added that Wa-tan-ye service clubs help to build a better, friendlier world.

St. Agnes Guild

St. Agnes Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal Church will meet Friday at 2 p.m., in Eells Room. Lynn Knights will present the program, "Flags of the American Revolution."

Dixon Junior Woman's Club

The Dixon Junior Woman's Club will sponsor its International Luncheon Thursday at 12 noon at the Corbett Farm, north of Franklin Grove. For transportation or directions, call Shirley Dickson at 288-1527 or Carol Sue Leslie 288-2454.

UMW

United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church will meet Thursday at 1 p.m., in the church parlor. Mrs. Robert Wharton will present the program, "Bicentennial Reflections: Readings from America's Past." Mrs. Thomas Whitcomb will lead devotions. Sarah Circle will host the social hour.

Craft Division, 620 S. Logan, 7:30 p.m., today.

St. Margaret's Guild

St. Margaret's Guild will meet Thursday in the home of Mrs. George Fries at 7:45 p.m.

Girl Scouts

Mrs. Ruth Little, executive director of Green Hills Council of Girl Scouts began an Executive Directors' Management training session Monday through Friday (March 8-12) in Dayton, Ohio. The seminar, developed by the national Girl Scout organization, will enable the participants to apply strategies of their own design to help mold the future of an organization and to learn more of everyday council management.

The method being used is simulation of management of a typical Girl Scout office, based on factual data obtained through field studies. It focuses on the need of executive directors to have a thorough understanding of policy and procedures of Scout councils, finances, the directors' relationship and responsibility to the Board of Directors, the adult volunteers, the council staff, and the national Scout organization.

Mrs. Little has been executive director of Green Hills Council since September of 1975 and previously served in field, public relations and training areas.

Wesleyans

The Wesleyans of the First United Methodist Church will meet for a 6:30 p.m. dinner today in the dining room of the church. Meat will be provided.

District 13 observes Nurses' Week

"Nursing '76: The Revolutionary Spirit of Health Care," is the theme of Illinois Nurses' Week being celebrated this week in Dixon and other cities across the state.

The observance, sponsored locally by District 13 of the Illinois Nurses' Association (INA), has been proclaimed in the state by Governor Dan Walker and locally by Mayor William Naylor. Principal objectives for the honorary week are to bring public attention to the nursing profession's work toward the best possible health care system for all citizens, and to highlight past achievements and present goals in nursing.

Nearly 50,000 registered nurses are now working in Illinois. Through their professional association, the INA, they are organized to promote passage of health care legislation, improve standards of nursing education and patient care and recruit more nurses into the profession.

Illinois Nurses' Week, designated in 1976 for the 17th year, continues through Saturday.

The Nurses of District 13 will celebrate with a dinner and style show at the Skyline Lounge Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased from nurses, House & Towne Shoppe and Klines Department Store.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South bid four spades rather cheerfully although he didn't really expect to make it. He rather hoped that East or West would take the push to five hearts, but everyone passed and the defense started out with two hearts and two clubs before shifting to a diamond.

South was on lead and had to pick up the queen of spades in order to hold the penalty to a mere 100 points.

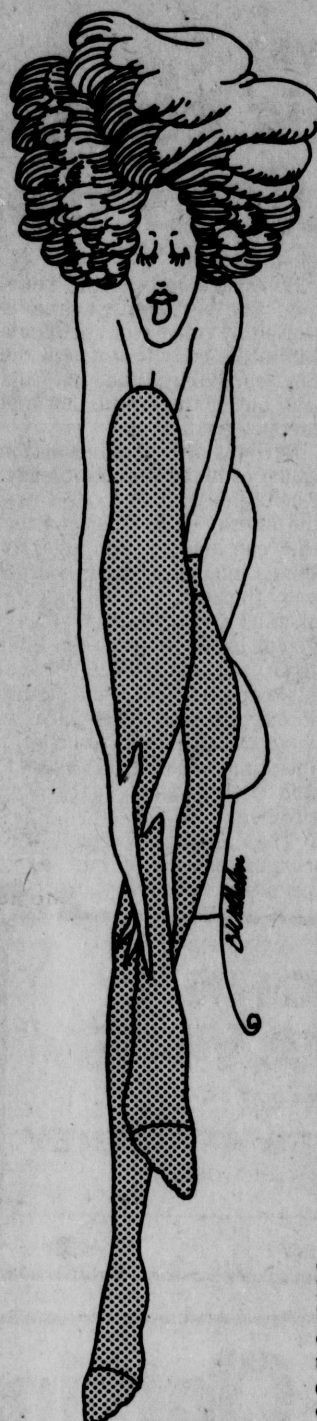

The game was duplicate and South noted that minus 100 would be worth some match points since some East-West pairs would have been allowed to play at a heart partial and three hearts would be a surefire contract irrespective of how the spades divided. South noted further that if spades were 3-1 the four-heart contract would have wheeled in, so South banged down his top spades, picked up the queen and was one down.

Suppose spades broke 3-1. Then South would have been minus 200, for down two, but East-West would have made their heart game, if allowed to play it. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Newlyweds to be honored

A reception honoring newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. David Butterbaugh, Grand Rapids, Mich., will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Butterbaugh, 1334 Long St., Dixon, Sunday from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

No invitations are being sent. Friends and relatives of the couple are welcome to attend the event.

Vast array of pantyhose perplexing to shoppers

By ELLIE GROSSMAN, NEW YORK — (NEA) — Some day someone's going to produce statistics proving that female nervous disorders and pantyhose are related.

Headaches are activated just by the bewildering variety you have to choose from. A thousand different names and styles, from 29 cents to several dollars. And they all run or snag sooner or later. Mostly sooner.

Well, just what are you getting for 39 cents, or 90 cents or $5?

"Women want longer life on the one hand and great sheerness on the other and the two are not compatible," says John Holtvedt, women's hosiery buyer for J.C. Penney whose private label pantyhose sells from 99 cents to $4.

By its very nature, the product is fragile. The sheerer it is, the more expensive because the yarns cost more. And the greater the risk of tearing.

On the other hand, support pantyhose which is the most durable because of the spandex it contains, is also the most costly because of that spandex. So you pay at both ends.

And you pay basically the same people. Pantyhose is divided between brand names—Hanes (L'eggs), Kayser-Roth (No-Nonsense), and Van Raalte, for instance — and private label or no-name pantyhose.

Brand name is nationally distributed and advertised. Private label is packaged under the particular name of a chain or department store, or sold unlabeled. It's usually less expensive and marketed more on a regional basis.

According to Sam Berry, the president of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, "The top 25 mills in the country make most of the pantyhose. We don't have any mills that are just private label or brand name."

Then, aren't you paying more for a brand name when you can probably get the same product for less in a chain store? Jack Ward, vice president of hosiery marketing for L'eggs pantyhose which sells for $1.39, says, "I guess it's conceivable that a customer could get a similar product in a chain store for 99 cents."

But most chains buy from several mills and neither the chain nor the mill will reveal who's making what for whom. And, Ward and his confreres hasten to add, there are other considerations. Granting a certain standardization in the industry — the same equipment, the same basic material, raw nylon — it's what happens from then on that accounts for price. And in the very cheapest, coarsest pantyhose, nothing beyond quick construction happens.

Raw nylon has no inherent stretch. That must be added by twisting the nylon on a spindle and "setting" it with heat so that it acquires the tension of a rubber band. This, in turn, allows it to stretch and snap back, preventing bagging.

Some mills receive the yarn already twisted, others "texturize" it themselves. What kind of yarn is used, how carefully it's texturized and dyed, how fast the knitting machines are run, whether the garment is inspected along the way, and if any hand-sewing takes place all figure in the cost. That, plus advertising and extra touches such as ribbons added at the waist.

Leonard Meisels, director of marketing and merchandising for Van Raalte, says, "You're paying for quality control and inspection in a brand name which you don't find in a lower price garment. And you don't find proportionate sizes or the color selection in the other garment. Most of our customers," he concludes, "are looking for continuity of availability and consistency in a manufacturer's signature."

Jack Paige, vice president of marketing for Bic Pantyhose, a new, mass-market 99 cent product, adds this. "Let's say a five-and-dime store bought a million pair of pantyhose from some manufacturer in North Carolina, packaged it under its own name and sold it for 59 cents. Six months later, they go back and get a better price from another manufacturer who uses different machines. The consumer wants what she bought before, but it isn't there now."

According to the president of Kayser-Roth, Merwin J. Joseph, "Our customer primarily wants fit so we put in a separate crotch piece and a sewn-on waistband in our No-Nonsense pantyhose which sells for $1.19. These procedures cost more because without them the garment can be knit in one process on the machine with a seam up the middle and a knit-in waistband. But the separate crotch piece allows for less strain and less chance of tearing; and the sewn-on waistband won't roll over."

Finally, it all does come down to what you want. John Holtvedt of J. C. Penney says, "You can't compare 99 cent and $2 garments because they serve two different purposes. Just to run around in, the customer can buy the cheaper pair. But if she's going out on a heavy date, she'll want a sheerer pantyhose."

Of course, she can always wear a pantsuit and no stockings and avoid the problem all together. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

To be honored on 40th anniversary

MR. AND MRS. ELLIS MYERS

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Myers, Polo, will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. with an open house given by their children.

Mr. Myers and the former Ethel Freeman were married March 14, 1936 in Mt. Morris. They are the parents of four children: Arnold and Richard, Polo; James, Oregon, and Mrs.

Jerry (Jane) Mehrens, Dixon. They have 11 grandchildren.

Mr. Myers has worked for Northwestern Steel and Wire, Sterling, for more than 25 years. He also farmed in Polo.

All relatives and friends of the couple are welcome to attend the event. They request that gifts be omitted.

Adoption Upsets

A recent television documentary described a similar educated woman, now married and with a family, who spent much money and time trying to discover who her flesh-and-blood parents were.

"For years," she admitted, "after learning I had been adopted, I conjured up imaginary images of who my original parents might have been.

"In fact, my favorite idea was that they were Marilyn Monroe and Howard Hughes!"

We often encounter other victims of what we term the "Foster Child Phantasy."

For children who aren't adopted, often grow irate at their flesh-and-blood parents and thus imagine they were adopted.

Then they secretly strike back by conjuring up ideas that they are the offspring of a foreign prince who visited America and had an affair with a movie star.

This romantic dream also inflates their wounded ego after they have been reprimanded by their real parents.

But you adopted folks should realize vividly that your REAL parents are those who chose you because of their voluntary love!

Most of the flesh-and-blood parents never planned to have you in the first place, for at least 75 per cent of such pregnancies are accidents!

So your flesh-and-blood mother didn't even know you were conceived till she missed her next menstrual period!

And such mothers often resent your pregnancy or even try an abortion.

Remember, too, that your natural parents were merely "carriers" of the sperm and ovum out of which you developed.

But the male doesn't do anything to produce the sperm, nor does the mother create the ovum!

They merely received that germinal tissue via inheritance from their parents, who obtained it from their parents, who did likewise clear back to the first couple here on this planet Earth.

You've doubtless seen relay runners, such as the four quarter milers who comprise a college relay team.

The first runner receives a baton, to carry during his quarter mile lap in the mile relay.

But he didn't create the baton, carve it, paint it or do a single thing to produce it, for he merely carries it for one lap.

Then he passes it on to the next until finally the anchor man brings it across the finish line!

So it is regarding our creation, so the true parent-child relationship is a spiritual affinity, based on love and voluntary choice!

Send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy & Adopted Children," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

SCS Area Conservationist Glenn Paulsgrove, Sterling, presents Merit Award for Special Achievement and Performance to Robert L. Lowe, Amboy, SCS District Conservationist for Lee County Soil & Water Conservation District.

Amboy conservationist receives merit award

AMBOY — District Conservationist, Robert L. Lowe, Amboy, of the Soil Conservation Service, has been awarded a Certificate of Merit and cash award from the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, by Glenn Paulsgrove, Area Conservationist, Sterling.

This award was presented to Lowe for special achievement and performance in assisting Lee and Whiteside Counties Soil and Water Conservation Districts during the period September 1974, through October 1975.

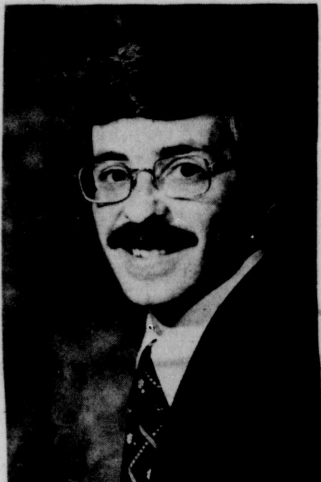

Through Mr. Lowe's planning and organization, major accomplishments were made in Whiteside County such as the completion of the first PTO terracing job, initiation of the LTA program, preliminary work on the Whiteside soil survey, and encouraging sponsors for RC&D measures.

In addition, under Mr. Lowe's planning and supervision, a record number of waterways and modern terrace systems were built in Lee County in 1975. Mr. Lowe represented the Soil Conservation Service in negotiations between the SCS and Lee County Board for the upcoming soil survey.

Along with his duties as Lee County District Conservationist, Mr. Lowe is a technical advisor to the Lee County Plan Commission, the Blackhawk Hills RC&D Council, the Lee County Soil & Water Conservation District Board, the Northern Illinois Land Use Council, and is a member of the Soil Conservation Society of America.

Livestock banquet to be Thursday

The Lee County Livestock Association will hold its 27th annual banquet Thursday, at the Loveland Community Building. Dinner will be served from 6 to 7:30 p.m. The program will begin at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Joyce Dollmeyer of the Illinois Beef Auxiliary will present a beef promotion display and also briefly describe her organization's activities. Roger Fiske of World Wide Travel, Inc., will explain the Illinois Livestock Association tour to the Great Northwest. This tour should be one of the Association's best. Mrs. Dana Stewart of Princeville, Ill., will be the featured speaker. The book she recently wrote describes the changes in her way of life between living in a city in Georgia and a farm in Illinois.

Officers of the Lee County organization are as follows: President, Dr. Jim Collins; President-Elect, Kenneth Leffelman; Vice president, Gordon Meyer; and Secretary-Treasurer, Clark E. Scholl. Directors include August Schulte, Merle Topper, Bill Deutsch, Jerry Wallace, Don Colwell, Stan Hoelzer, and Gene Sondergroth. Tickets for the banquet are available from any of the officers or directors.

Ohio farmer to speak at Kish weather seminar

William Fordham, Ohio, a corn and soybean specialist operating a 1,400-acre farm since 1962, will discuss "Evaluating Weather and Crop Yields," at a seminar sponsored by Kishwaukee College to be held March 17 from 1-4 p.m., in the upper auditorium of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Building, 315 N. Sixth St., DeKalb. It is co-sponsored by Kishwaukee College, the DeKalb County Cooperative Extension Service and the DeKalb County Farm Bureau.

"Cyclic Weather Patterns and their Effect on Grain Production," will be the topic discussed by Dr. Louis M. Thompson, associate dean of Iowa State University.

Thompson has taught soils and farm management at Iowa State since 1947. He has recently become interested in the application of statistics to technology and weather factors in crop production here and abroad.

"Is Illinois Weather Changing?" is the topic to be discussed by Stanley A. Changnon Jr., head of atmospheric sciences, University of Illinois.

Changnon has authored 190 scientific papers and technical reports concerning meteorology, climatology and water resources of Illinois. He is also president-elect of the American Meteorological Society.

Vegetable school to be Wednesday

Vegetable producers in the area are invited to the 1976 North Central Commercial Vegetable Grower Fieldman's School, scheduled for Wednesday, at 10 a.m., at Erik's Restaurant at the North edge of Rochelle according to M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension Adviser.

The meeting is conducted to provide up-to-date research information from University of Illinois Extension Specialists. The program outline is as follows:

10 a.m. — Dr. Joe Vandemark, Extension Specialist, Horticulture Crops, Soil Testing and Soil Fert.; 11 a.m. — Dr. Herb Hopen, Extension Specialist, Horticulture Crops, Herbicides and Weed Control; 12 noon — Lunch; 1 p.m. — Dr. Barry Jacobsen, Extension Plant Pathologist, Fungicides and Disease Control; 2 p.m. — Dr. Roscoe Randall, Extension Entomologist, Insecticides and Insect Control.

The program is intended to serve as a research up-date meeting for fieldman but Commercial Growers are also welcome to attend.

Grossmans return from trip

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grossman, 210 S. Mason, Amboy, returned recently from an eight-day Hawaiian tour sponsored by Successful Farming magazine. The trip hosted by a Successful Farming representative, combined a traditional tour of Hawaii with special visits to agricultural areas.

Included were visits to the University of Hawaii Agricultural Research Center and farm, the Haleakala Dairy on Maui, the famous Parker Ranch and the Trojan Seed Farm.

Shopping and leisurely sight seeing of the three major Hawaiian islands occupied the remainder of the trip.

Host families are needed for the period from late July to late August, states Getzelman.

The Japanese youth are part of the Labo International Exchange Foundation in which Japanese youth learning the English language participate in a home-stay exchange to promote international friendship and cultural understanding.

The program provides a first-hand opportunity for American families to share themselves and their way of life with a person of another culture. In addition to living with a host family for three weeks, the Japanese youth will share a one-week camping experience with their American host family youth.

Although the majority of the Japanese youth will be from 10 to 15 years of age, there will be about 15 teen leaders aged 15 to 19 and several adults accompanying the group.

Regulations of new egg law changed

By M. T. BARLASS
Lee Co. Extension Adviser

Recently we talked about the new Illinois Egg Law that went into effect Jan. 1, 1976. Since then, regulations and interpretation of them and of the law have been changed to make the law more workable for the egg industry. Some of the most important changes to egg producers are listed here:

1. The egg inspection fee was suspended until Feb. 1, 1976, and reduced to two cents a case until July 1, 1976.

Collection of the four-cent-per-case inspection fee on eggs sold was to have begun Nov. 1, 1975. However, to provide time for everyone to become familiar with the new law and regulations, collection of the fee was suspended until Feb. 1, 1976. So, no fees are due on eggs sold between Nov. 1, 1975, and Feb. 1, 1976.

Also, the fee was reduced from four to two cents a case until July 1, 1976. Prior to July 1, the director of agriculture is expected to announce what the fee will be after that date.

2. Undergrade eggs may but do not have to be removed from nest-run eggs.

Previously, the regulations stated that a producer who sells nest-run eggs must remove checks, dirties, and other obvious undergrades. Now, this is optional and permits checked eggs—but not leakers—to be included in nest-run eggs. Eggs that are washed and candled but not labeled may also be included. Producers may sell nest-run eggs on their premises to consumers.

Host families needed for Japanese youth

A 10- to 15-year-old who's 10,000 miles from home can get homesick unless he has a place he can call "home," says Bob Getzelman, Ogle County Extension adviser. The Cooperative Extension Service is seeking "homes" for approximately 150 Japanese youngsters scheduled to arrive in Illinois about July 23.

Although the majority of the Japanese youth will be from 10 to 15 years of age, there will be about 15 teen leaders aged 15 to 19 and several adults accompanying the group.

Host families are needed for the period from late July to late August, states Getzelman.

3. Licensed egg producers may sell both nest-run and graded eggs.

An egg producer who has an egg handler's license is permitted to sell both nest-run and graded eggs to consumer on his premises. He may also sell graded eggs to consumers and others off his premises. The inspection fee is to be paid only on the graded eggs sold.

4. Good, unmarked used cartons may be reused for nest-run eggs.

Eggs sold at retail are to be packaged only in new cartons. But ungraded eggs sold directly by producers on their premises to household consumers may be packaged in either new or unmarked, good used cartons. The producer's own name label, but not the grade, may be on a reused carton. Selling nest-run eggs in a carton with a grade label on it violates the truth-in-packaging law.

5. Eggs are to be graded by the first receiver by the close of the fifth business day after they are received at the grading facility.

Exceptions can be made to this, however, by agreement between the buyer and seller. Or the eggs may be sold as "Nest-Run Eggs." In that case, they must be assigned a nest-run grade and weight class as defined in the Federal standards for shell eggs.

6. From the time of candling and grading, all eggs for human consumption are to be stored at a temperature not to exceed 60 degrees Fahrenheit until they reach the consumer.

The 60 degrees Fahrenheit requirement is to begin after candling and grading. It applies to any place or room in which the eggs are held except during transportation. Temperature inside the vehicle may exceed 60 degrees Fahrenheit, provided the temperature taken inside each master container remains 60 degrees Fahrenheit or below.

7. The use of expiration dates on the labels of cartons offered for retail sale is optional.

If an expiration date is used, it must be within a 30-day period from the date of candling. It must be shown either as (1) expiration day, month or (2) expiration month, day. Eggs with an expiration date on the container may not be offered for sale or sold to a consumer after the date marked on the container.

8. When eggs are advertised, their size, grade, and price must all be shown in the advertisement.

The size and grade must be equally conspicuous, but the price can be in different size and style of print. Egg size cannot be abbreviated. These requirements apply to all forms of advertising, including newspaper, periodical, window, display case, radio, television, handbill, etc.

9. When eggs are sold by a handler or other licensee to another handler or retailer for resale to consumers, some accounting document must be with the eggs all the time.

Formerly, only an invoice was acceptable. However, today's business methods make this impractical in some instances. So, either an invoice or other accounting document showing the name and address of both the seller and buyer and the exact grade and size of the eggs sold according to Federal standards must be with the eggs. Both the seller and the buyer must keep a copy of this document on file at their places of business for 30 days.

10. Egg producers with small flocks may be exempted from the provisions of this law in the future.

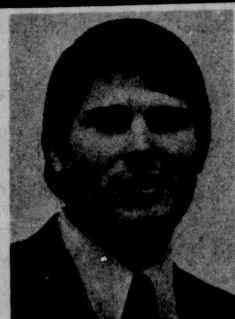

Some owners of small laying flocks have indicated they were going to quit producing eggs, because the law creates too much difficulty for them. If you are contemplating such action, it might be well to reconsider. The Illinois Dept. of Agriculture plans to introduce new legislation to exempt small producers from the law.

Any family feels effects of federal regulations

By BROOKS JACKSON and EVANS WITT
ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — At 7:45 a.m., Nancy Ruddell sits down for her first cup of morning coffee, adding an artificial sweetener containing saccharin.

"Contains no cyclamate" reads the little packet of Shop Rite Superior Quality Sweetener. Cyclamate lacks saccharin's bitter aftertaste, but it cannot be sold for human consumption because of a U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ruling in 1969.

This day that started at 6:15 a.m. is a mostly unexceptional one for Tom and Nancy Ruddell. They take their two children to school; Tom goes to work at Pennsylvania Power and Light; Nancy makes two shopping trips; and they give a small party.

But throughout this day, and every other day, the Ruddells' lives — and those of every American — are shaped by federal regulations.

The effects of most regulations slip by unnoticed — like U.S. Department of Agriculture's fat content for the choice beef sold at the local supermarket. Others are not so hidden — like the required seat belt ignition interlock on Nancy's red Volvo 165 station wagon which she calls "a constant pain in the neck."

The extent to which federal regulations touch the Ruddell family is not unusual. Every family in this town — where the Liberty Bell was hidden from British troops in 1777 in the Zion Reformed Church — and every family in this country is affected by the rules made in Washington, D.C.

For most Americans, the federal role in their personal lives is largely ignored.

This, then, is a look at the regulations in a day in the life of one American family in this city of 109,000 in the rolling hills of eastern Pennsylvania.

6:15 a.m. — A burst from the alarm clock rouses the family. The clock reads that particular time because Congress decreed Daylight Savings Time ended when October did.

6:25 a.m. — Geoffrey, age 5, slips out of his pajamas that are flame retardant because the Consumer Product Safety Commission requires sleepwear for children to be so treated.

6:50 a.m. — Three quarts of Abbotts homogenized milk deposited earlier in the morning outside the back door are brought in by Geoffrey. Nancy makes a mix of the milk and reconstituted Shop Rite Instant Non-Fat Dry Milk, cutting the drink's calories and cholesterol. But the resulting mixture is also cheaper than ordinary skim milk because the U.S. Department of Agriculture sets a higher support price for skim milk than whole milk.

7:37 a.m. — Jennifer, 10, and Geoffrey take the Hess's brand of Fruit Flavored Chewable Multiple Vitamins. A bit later, Tom and Nancy both take a multivitamin made by the Treasury Drug Co. for the J.C. Penney Co.

The manufacture and labeling of vitamins are now regulated by the Food and Drug Administration, but Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., is sponsoring a bill to prohibit the FDA from regulating the potency of such diet supplements. This would mean consumers would be able to buy massive doses of various vitamins, whether or not the FDA concludes such doses have a medical benefit.

7:50 a.m. — Tom starts for work. The federally mandated seat belt alarm on his Audi sedan doesn't make a shrill buzz when he turns the ignition key. It's been disconnected. "It's my way of protesting the system," he says.

7:55 a.m. — Driving to work, Tom recalls the story of how a federal safety inspector ordered the wearing of hardhats and installation of guardrails at the workshop of the Trolley Museum in Kennebunkport, Maine. During the family's summer vacations, Tom spends much of his time working as a volunteer in restoring old trolley cars.

"They probably did us a favor, but, my Lord, it makes you think. They've even gotten to trolley museums," he says.

8:14 a.m. — Nancy backs her Volvo station wagon out of the garage on the way to take Jennifer to school. She pulls a small greyish box out of the glove compartment, presses its button and the garage door closes.

The box is a low-powered radio transmitter, a Wickes model 116-56, which was built according to meet Federal Communications Commission standards.

But FCC rules are just not something Nancy thinks about. She notices the label on the back of the transmitter for the first time: "This label is required by FCC rules. Do not remove."

8:19 a.m. — Jennifer carries her homemade lunch of a ham-and-tomato sandwich into the Union Terrace School. Many other students at Jennifer's public school will eat a lunch prepared at the school cafeteria, federally subsidized at about 23 cents for each lunch.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture requires that, to qualify for the subsidy, the school must serve a "Type A" lunch, which the department specifies must contain 2 ounces of meat or a meat substitute, 3/4 cup of at least two vegetables or fruits, bread, butter and a half pint of milk.

8:35 a.m. — The federal government is constantly looking over Nancy's shoulder as she buys the family groceries at the big, brilliantly illuminated Shop Rite supermarket.

Nancy picks up a two-pound jar of Skippy peanut butter, which the FDA says can be called peanut butter because it is 90 per cent peanuts. Any less, the FDA says, it must be called "peanut spread."

The label on the can of sliced peaches lists the vitamins, minerals and calories that each serving of the fruit contains. The FDA is again responsible.

The Department of Agriculture set the standard which determines that the eye-of-the-round roast Nancy buys is "choice" rather than "prime." And it inspected the farm which was home for the cow that was the source for the $1.87-a-pound beef.

These regulations are not on Nancy's mind as she shops.

"I'm looking for food that I think is nutritional. I don't care what the government says is right," she explains. "I don't listen to Ralph Nader either."

12:17 p.m. — As if to underline her statements, Nancy makes her second shopping stop of the day at the Allentown Farmers Market, where mostly Pennsylvania grown produce is sold in stalls in the open-air market, largely free from federal control.

Nancy buys apples and cheese.

Both are sold by farmers under federal agricultural marketing orders, which are designed to control supply and allocate income among producers. The federal government also props up the price of cheese by keeping foreign cheese out of the country and by buying quantities of American cheese when prices fall.

Much of the produce available at the market avoids much federal regulation, for it is produced and sold inside Pennsylvania. For example, there is meat on sale that is not USDA inspected, because it is not shipped across state lines and thus is not in interstate commerce.

1:10 p.m. — Tom goes over a report at his office. It shows, based on a poll of the company's supervisory officers, that 23 federal bodies either receive reports from Pennsylvania Power and Light or affect its business in some way. The Agriculture Department loans money for rural electric service, the Environmental Protection Agency controls smoke-stack pollutants at generating stations, the Federal Power Commission controls wholesale prices on interstate sales of electricity to other utilities, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission wants to know about PP&L's minority-group employees ... the list goes on.

... and any town trapped on web of bureaucracy

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Here on the banks of the Licking River, 299 miles from the U.S. Capitol in Washington, the federal government touches almost everybody.

Trucker John LeFever had to buy new, quieter tires. City water chief John Kinder was required to install $32,502 worth of handrails and grates at the municipal water and sewage plants.

Banker William T. McConnell pays exactly 5 per cent interest on savings accounts. Druggist Marty Schuster must fill out a four-part federal form — and pay a bit more — to buy some stimulants and painkillers from his wholesaler.

All because of federal regulations.

It could be any town. This one has many factories, about 41,000 inhabitants and an ornate 99-year-old courthouse.

But the impact of federal rules would be the same if the town were larger or smaller, or wherever in the United States it sat. The web of federal regulations shapes the activities of ... everyone.

The Druggist
Schuster, manager of Newark's two Arcade pharmacies, has never seen federal inspectors from two major agencies regulating his business, Drug Enforcement Administration and Occupational Safety and Health Administration. But he feels their impact.

When Schuster orders some controlled drugs such as amphetamines, he must use a four-part DEA form. "The wholesaler won't give his normal discount. That extra cost I have to pass along to customers."

The Trucker
LeFever, the strapping, ruddy-faced president of B&L Motor Freight, Inc., prospers under tight federal regulation. The Interstate Commerce Commission protects him from competition in many ways.

Environmental Protection

Agency noise rules just forced him to buy new tires to quiet the howling of treads at high "little frightened" of new rules on disclosing interest rates, real estate settlement costs and individual pension accounts.

First Federal Savings and Loan President Richard Wilson says he takes the almost daily announcements of changes in Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations home with him at night to try to keep up.

The Chip Man
Guy Pangle says government regulation is putting his little Mar-Cel Potato Chip Co. out of business. He says he spent $13,000 — putting him in the red — remodeling to satisfy federal, state and city rules.

The Radio Station Man
Bob Pricer, manager of radio station WCET, hasn't seen a Federal Communication Commission engineer in years. But he thinks a Labor Department rule that driving a motor vehicle is a hazardous job for anyone under 18, will force him to stop hiring high school students to drive the station's mobile unit.

"I don't think we can regulate safety from the cradle to the grave," he says.

The Doctor
Dr. Ralph Pickett, medical director of the Licking County's only hospital, doesn't get too upset by regulations. "I have seen a lot of regulations come, and not very many of them go. I'm just glad we don't get all the federal regulation we pay for," way speeds, but he says he would have had to buy new ones anyway.

The Department of Transportation's rule for super-heavy trucks and sophisticated anti-skid computers added $90,000 to the cost of 50 recently purchased cabs.

The Factory Manager
Eric Gay, manager of the town's biggest private factory, is as hard to pin down as any federal bureaucrat. Ask him about federal regulations:

"You're in a very sensitive area," he says, referring inquiries to Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. headquarters in Toledo, Ohio.

The plant once spewed pollutants so caustic they ate paint off cars in the company parking lot. State officials have twice fined the plant for spilling fish-killing poisons into waterways.

Now, after several years and millions of dollars, the plant is by all accounts cleaner, safer and less polluting.

OSHA still wants quieter fiber-making centrifuges, which pour out an ear-crushing 105 decibels of noise as the molten glass is drawn out like cotton candy. The company says it can't soften the machines' din, so employees wear hearing protectors and work in soundproof booths.

The Mayor
Mayor Robert E. Baker complains about federal controls, like the ones that required spending $32,000 on safety handrails at the waterworks.

But he aggressively seeks more federal money for a housing project and an innovative "dial-a-cab" service for the elderly.

The Bankers
Park National Bank Executive Vice President William McConnell says his bank is "a Lavern wanted to know more about his job. So he went to our "college."

Lavern Danley isn't your typical college man. For one thing, he's 27, married, with two children. And he's been out in the world working for 10 years.

But since he's been working for Commonwealth Edison, he's developed a new interest in higher education. Lavern recently attended Commonwealth Edison's after-hours school. It's our own little college, where more than 700 employees are enrolled in nearly 50 courses, from shorthand to nuclear power fundamentals. All at a nice price—free to any employee interested.

Lavern took courses on transformers, math, and mechanics. And what he learned in the classroom, he puts to work on the job.

Example: After studying transformers at night, Lavern works on them during the day, down beneath the sidewalks of the Loop. By knowing what to look for, he can fix a small problem before it becomes a large one.

"There's no doubt about it. What I learned at school helps me do a better job," says Lavern. "And the way I see it, when the work gets done better and faster, that keeps costs down for the company. Which helps keep the rates down, too. Which is good for everybody."

Home Furnishing Terms
You Should Know

The SWAG is a type of draped valance that is often a part of the window treatments found in more formally decorated rooms. High fashion Swags are ideal for very large windows and arched windows. Either draped over a decorated rod or shirred on a concealed rod, Swags will add true elegance to any room.

The term CHIPPENDALE has become synonymous with 18th Century taste and styling. It describes the type of furnishings first designed by the cabinet maker, Thomas Chippendale in the 1700's. The Chippendale designs incorporated several styles including the ornate French rococo, Gothic, and the geometric patterns of the Chinese style. The original pieces were almost exclusively of mahogany. Chippendale is characterized by ornate carvings and graceful outlines.

Have you heard the term SCONCE? A Sconce is an ornamental wall bracket which holds candles. It is an elegant wall hanging that can be the perfect finishing touch to a room's decor.

Truck crash in Rochelle

ROCHELLE — South Main Street was blocked from Standard Oil Rd. south until 8:19 this morning after a semi trailer tipped over near the entrance of Swift & Co., Monday night.

Police said that the driver of the semi, Wayne E. Hochstetler, 30, Triumph, Ill., had just gotten a load of meat and turned north on South Main. When he shifted gears, he heard a cracking noise and the trailer became unattached, falling on its side into the southbound lane.

Police blocked the area until the trailer was removed this morning. Damage to the trailer was not known.

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

It was the Democrats' Meet the Candidates Night in eastern Lee County Monday and in virtually every presentation in behalf of a candidate there was also a plea for "getting Democrats together for a big victory in November."

The theme may have been a spin-off of the bitter primary struggle between Gov. Dan Walker and Secretary of State Michael Howlett for the Democratic nod to run for governor.

Charles Walker, the 20-year-old son of the governor who is a student at Brown University, spoke briefly and said, "I'll let Mike and Dan throw the mud, all I have to say is let's get together to defeat the Republicans in November."

Candidates who spoke in behalf of their own campaigns were:

John Payne, the uncontested candidate to run for state's attorney, who said the persons holding that office must be dedicated to keep politics out of the office; dedicated to hard work, and realization not every case can be won but committed to fully prepare to prosecute each case.

Payne said the officer should work with all juvenile agencies in the county.

He said the budget for the office should be sufficient to pay for competent professional persons but the officer must always realize it is the taxpayer's money.

Terry Fisher, a candidate for nomination to run for circuit clerk, said the three problems facing Democrats is low voter turnout, disunity and raising finances.

His opponent is Edward Conroy, who declared "It is awesome to ask for your vote because this is asking for your confidence and this places great responsibility on the candidates." Conroy said he does not take lightly the responsibility of asking Democrats to support his candidacy.

Stanley J. Roszkowski, Rockford, a candidate for nomination to run for a seat on the Illinois Supreme Court from the Second District, who said every candidate nominated by the Democrats should be one who will be helpful to the entire ticket in November.

State Rep. Richard Mautino, D-Spring Valley, spoke for Howlett noting he had been an effective and efficient administrator for the 16 years he has been in public office.

Ted Trulock Jr., county coordinator of Walker spoke for the governor. He said he worked for Walker in 1972 because he was honest, sincere and hard working and for the people and he still believes Walker still has these qualities and that is the reason he supports him again.

Rochelle council hears Swift plea

ROCHELLE — R. T. Vernam, assistant general manager of purchasing and supply control of Swift & Co., Chicago, speaking at a city council meeting Monday night, said that the company felt that a utility tax had no relevance to usage of the public right of way.

Vernam, referring to the utility tax to be imposed if the overpass referendum passes, said that the city should consider a different type of funding, such as motor fuel tax, vehicle stickers, or a general levy property tax. He added that a utility does not affect all people equally.

In response, Mayor Cippola said that the city thought the utility tax was "the fairest method" and that they understand that industry will be paying a big share of it. He added that the property owner always "gets it in the neck."

In other business, the council appointed Larry Skinner, district manager of Del Monte, to the planning commission. His appointment will expire July 1, 1978.

The council also amended a section of the Rochelle city code concerning negligent driving. The amendment reads in part, "It will be unlawful to operate in a negligent manner a vehicle upon the streets and highways in such a manner as to endanger any persons or property."

City Clerk John Havens advised voters that he will be in his office from 9:30 a.m., until noon on Saturday for voters to cast absentee ballots for the March 16 referendum. Absentee ballots may be cast until 5 p.m., March 15.

Mayor Cippola urged all citizens to get out and vote on the referendum, and reminded those present that a meeting will be held at 7 p.m., Wednesday at the Junior High cafeteria concerning the overpass issue. Federal and state representatives and council members will be present at the meeting.

Jail term and probation to Dixon youth

Ralph C. Moore, 17, 423 W. Ninth St., was sentenced Monday to three years probation, the first four months to be served in Lee County jail. Moore pleaded guilty to an amended charge of aggravated battery before Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales.

Dixon Police arrested Moore on a charge of deviate sexual assault stemming from an incident Aug. 26 involving an 11-year-old Dixon boy.

Nabbed on warrant

An Amboy man was picked up by Lee County Sheriff's deputies on the authority of a warrant from Cook County.

Hans Liebing, 38, was charged by Cook County courts with contempt. He was released on bond to appear in court March 22.

West Brooklyn spur dedication set June 12

The grand opening of the rebuilt West Brooklyn spur to U.S. 30, will be held in connection with the village's Bicentennial celebration on June 12 and 13.

Features will be a street dance, fly-in and drive-in for a pancake and sausage breakfast; a tug-of-war and a patriotic program.

An ecumenical church service will be held on Sunday.

The celebration is a community effort, said Fran Ege, who indicated churches, the village board and the fire department are among the agencies working to stage the celebration.

Two cyclists face charges

Two motorcyclists were charged with violation of license classifications Monday.

Dixon Police charged Robert C. Dyche, 18, 1606 N. Jefferson Ave., after he was noticed riding a Honda motorcycle on the 900 block of Hemlock Avenue. He was given a notice to appear in circuit court March 23.

Corey R. Iverson, 16, Paw Paw, is to appear in court March 22 on the same charge. He was arrested by Lee County Sheriff's deputies who stopped Iverson on Main Street in Paw Paw.

Injured in accident

OREGON — A Dixon man was listed in good condition at KSB Hospital today after his car was struck by another car Monday afternoon.

The mishap occurred on Ill. 2, North of Grand Detour. Walter A. Kyger, 59, 306 Douglas Ave., had stopped his car along the highway. A following car, driven by James Reum, 19, Rockford, was unable to stop and struck the rear of the Kyger vehicle.

The accident is still under investigation by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies.

Running as uncommitted delegate

Milton Babcock, Freeport, is an uncommitted candidate in the March 16 Democratic primary election for delegate to the party's National Nominating Convention in New York City on July 12.

Babcock has been active in the Democratic Party over a long period of years — as precinct committeeman, city council member for nine years, and alternate delegate to the 1968 nominating convention.

He has been active in both the public and private sectors of the community as a volunteer. "Through my experience as a volunteer I have learned to be sensitive and responsive to people and their needs," Babcock said. He is currently a member of the city's Flood Control Commission, Red Cross board, Rawleigh Art Museum board, and the Historical Society.

Previously he has been a member of the school board.

Vandalism reported

Vandals damaged a building at the Green River Defense Park, off U.S. 30, over the past weekend.

Elmer Burger notified Lee County Sheriff's deputies Monday, that 12 window frames, each holding eight panes of glass were broken out. Glass on an electric meter was also broken, deputies found.

The glass was believed broken by shot fired from a .22 caliber rifle.

county welfare committee, Community Action Agency board, and active in school and scouting affairs. He and Mrs. Babcock recently served a year with VISTA, working with low-income families in Northeastern Oklahoma.

He was formerly in the marketing division of The W. T. Rawleigh Company and now has his own advertising agency. Mrs. Babcock is a former teacher. They have a son who practices law in Washington, D.C., and a daughter who is a member of the Boston Symphony.

He said, "with such a large field of contenders for Presidential nomination, at filing time on Jan. 7, it was impossible to get the opinions and preferences of the Democrats of the 16th congressional district. By leaving the options open, running uncommitted we are in a better position to evaluate the qualifications of the various candidates for President and choose a strong, capable man to win the election in November," said Babcock.

Two boys are accused in theft

OREGON — Raymond J. Tichon, 18, Forreton, and a juvenile boy were arrested by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies Monday on two charges of theft.

The youths are accused in connection with thefts of two citizen's band radios from pickup trucks in rural Shannon.

Tichon was released on bond to appear in Ogle County Circuit Court March 19. The juvenile was released to the custody of his parents, pending a juvenile court hearing.

CETA hopes to put more persons on jobs

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Although many agencies in Lee County are profiting from manpower training programs available here, the director of CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) feels more can be accomplished to improve both the social and economic conditions of persons and communities.

William Sery, who directs the CETA program through the Illinois Farmers Union office at Sauk Valley College, says an intensive recruitment program has been launched to enroll both clients and organizations into the $2.5-million local program.

"We have a lot of funds available," the director proclaimed in an interview. "... our problem is getting the word out."

CETA is a manpower program designed to provide job training and employment for the economically disadvantaged, the unemployed and the under-employed.

Sery stressed the program is not an employment agency. Instead he describes CETA as a means whereby persons can upgrade their skills, either through on-the-job training, classroom training or work experience.

The program is in its second year of funding and serves the counties of Lee, Ogle, Whiteside, Carroll, Jo Daviess, Stephenson and DeKalb.

CETA pays the salaries of a host of clients employed both in public service jobs and also in training positions in the private sector. In both categories a certain emphasis is placed upon the prospects for continued employment when federal funds are cut off. Sery added his staff looks for a balance in the overall jobs program. Salaries range from the minimum wage, $2.30 per hour, up to $10,000 annually.

Workers on the CETA payroll perform a variety of duties in Lee County. They work for the cities of Dixon and Amboy; in Lee County government at the highway department, nursing home and regional superintendent of schools' office; at Sauk Valley College as secretaries; Nachusa Lutheran Home, Martha Home for Girls; the Lee County Council on Aging drop-in center; the Youth Service Bureau; the employment office and the Dixon Developmental Center.

To enter the program a person must fall into one of three categories:

Economically disadvantaged: with income within poverty guidelines of the federal government. A single wage-earner's annual income must fall below $2,500; the income of a seven-member family must fall below $7,510 annually to qualify as economically disadvantaged.

Unemployed: must be out of work for at least seven days for training or education programs, and 30 days for public service employment.

Underemployed: Those who are working part-time but seeking full-time work or those who are working full-time but receiving wages below poverty guidelines.

Public aid recipients automatically qualify.

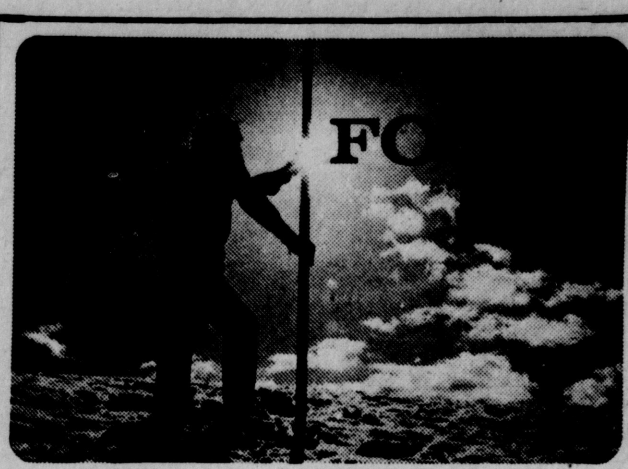

Applicants fall into the following categories: Title 1, Comprehensive Manpower Training and Services; Title 2, Public Service Employment; Title 3, Summer Youth Employment; and Emergency Public Service Employment.

Although the heart of CETA is centered around Title 1, depressed economic conditions brought forth a $1.1-million allocation of funds for the emergency employment program. Figures Sery compiled indicate a 10 per cent average unemployment rate in this region. Stephenson County has the highest unemployment rate at 12 per cent.

Region-wide, 259 persons are enrolled under Title 1 and 160 under the emergency program.

CETA participants receive counseling, job testing and referrals to make them more competitive for seeking a particular position, Sery maintains. This is accomplished by on-the-job training in the private sector, enabling the participant to learn a job skill or qualify for a specific occupation and classroom training to learn a vocational or technical skill. In most cases CETA funds are used while the applicant receives the training.

Sery urged any organization, public or private, that sees a training need which is not being met, to contact his office to determine if CETA can fund the need.

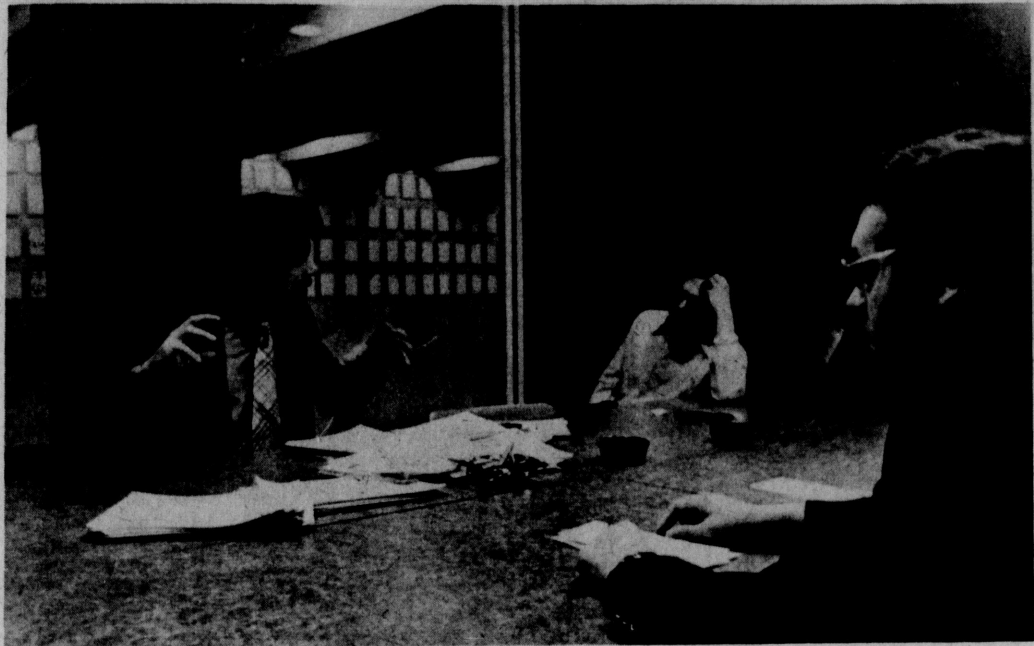

Nature's Winter Reservoir

What natural resource is cold, white and can be measured in inches? The answer is snow. Much of the usable water that reaches the western United States comes from mountain snow. Each spring, the melting snow enters mountain streams that feed into the major rivers of the western states. Thus, during the winter months, packed snow becomes a natural reservoir for the water that will serve these states during the spring and early summer. Today, some scientists are working to improve on nature's plan. They are seeking ways to minimize evaporation from the snow packs, prolong the snowmelt yields, and increase the accuracy of snowmelt forecasts.

DO YOU KNOW — Is most of the world's water in solid, liquid, or gaseous form?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Seal breeding grounds are called rookeries.

Dietitian urges selection of proper foods

By JOYCE MILLER

Dietitian, KSB Hospital

One out of every three meals is eaten away from home by almost every American. The freedom to eat what we want and when we want it without shortchanging our bodies depends on you.

You can eat what you want, but, to select the right combination of foods to meet all the demands of your body requires thought and understanding.

It is not difficult—choices have been made since the first days away from home in the school lunch room and the trading of sandwiches from a "Brown bag" to the many temptations of the vending machines today.

This is National Nutrition Week. The major problem facing dietitians is education. Getting the simple basic facts of what constitutes a good diet into the day-to-day eating patterns is the primary goal.

Americans have been called the "most overfed, underexercised people in the world," in other words, we are a nation of "fatties."

We need to put more emphasis upon Nutrition and Food Selection in the Health and Physical Education Courses throughout the school system beginning in the early primary years.

Government regulatory agencies are monitoring advertising and labeling of foods. This should aid in the misinformation resulting from false and misleading advertising.

Attitudes and family food habits need to be changed. There is no doubt that the American wife and mother is the key figure in controlling the food in the household, though only two-thirds of the meals are eaten there. She makes decisions on what to buy and how to prepare the food. Educational radio and television programs, magazine and newspaper articles, nutritional clinics are available as sources of information. She must learn to be more discriminating between fact, fads and sensationalism.

Learn to choose your foods wisely to meet your own needs.

You are what you eat. Don't be a garbage can or a "junk food junkie."

Aren't there bit changes in store for the Medicare program? I seem to be reading a lot about it lately. — T. L. Dear Mrs. L:

A number of major changes are now being considered for the Medicare program. These changes, if implemented, could have a significant effect on the amount senior citizens and others would be required to pay and on the extent of medical and hospital coverage provided by Medicare. The federal administration in Washington has made several proposals for Medicare revision, and many members of Congress have their own ideas as to how the program should be improved. No final action has been taken on any of the suggested changes, so this is a good time to let your views be known.

The Social Security system, you may know, is also being closely scrutinized. At stake is the long-range effectiveness and solvency of the system. Your views on this important subject would also be most welcome by those who represent you in state and national government.

Isn't there a law in Illinois which helps people who have been victimized by muggers and other criminals? — G.D. Dear Mr. D:

Yes — Since 1973 Illinois has had the Crime Victims Compensation Act, intended to help people who suffer financial losses as a result of violent crimes. The law covers the crimes of murder, voluntary manslaughter, kidnapping, arson, rape and deviate sexual assault, assault and battery, reckless conduct and indecent liberties with a child.

Victims of these crimes may be eligible for compensation, and so may certain relatives of the victim — for example, relatives dependent for support on someone who has died as a result of a violent crime, or relatives required to pay medical expenses for a crime victim. In order to qualify, you must have suffered a financial loss of at least $200. You must have promptly reported the crime to local law enforcement authorities, and you must cooperate fully with those officials. No compensation is allowed when the criminal and victim are from the same household.

Those who apply successfully for compensation may receive assistance in paying for medical and hospital expenses, loss of earnings, funeral and burial expenses, and loss of support. Nothing can be paid for loss or damage to property. Within six months of the date of the crime, you must notify the Illinois Attorney General of your intent to file a claim. The actual application must be submitted to the Clerk of the Court of Claims within two years after the injury.

You may be required to undergo a medical examination in the process of having your claim checked. The attorney general's office will investigate claims whether or not the alleged criminal is known, and whether or not he has been arrested and found guilty or not guilty. File your notice with the Attorney General's Crime Victims Division at Room 300, 188 W. Randolph St., Chicago 60601, or at Suite 615 Lincoln Tower Plaza in Springfield 62706, or at Suite 415, 188 W. Randolph, Chicago 60601.

Aren't senior citizens supposed to receive discounts when purchasing their auto license plates? I had to pay full price for mine. — H. G. Dear Mrs. G:

Automobile license plate fees for first division vehicles such as passenger cars are based on the horsepower of the car. Certain special vehicles, such as those owned and operated by non-profit charitable or religious organizations, can qualify for a reduced annual fee of $5.

Seniors 69 and older do, however, qualify for reductions in fees paid for drivers' licenses. The regular fee is $8, but qualifying seniors will pay only $4.

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging 288-2117.

Esther Barton to speak on Lowell Park

The Lee County Historical Society will meet Wednesday evening, at 7:30 p.m., in the Loveland Community House in Dixon.

The program will be presented by Miss Esther Barton, whose subject will be "Lowell Park." She will tell many interesting facts and stories of Lowell Park since its beginning, many of which are little-known.

Miss Barton served on the Dixon Park Board for 27 years, and has always had a great interest in Lowell Park. She is well known, having served as the first president of the Lee County Historical Society after it was reactivated (1964 and 1965). Miss Barton retired in 1967 from her life-long work in the elementary educational field with which she was associated for 51 years. At the time of her retirement, she was principal of Lincoln School in Dixon, having been its principal from its beginning. She is a member of many organizations, having served as president of many of them. She has traveled all over the world, has received many honors, and Fifth lecture in mental health series by Rev. Downing

The Rev. A. J. Downing, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, will present the fifth lecture of the year of the Mental Health Association of Lee County today at 7:30 p.m., in the parish hall of St. Patrick's Church, Amboy.

The past 15 years have been repeatedly high lighted with national and local emphasis on the needs of our senior citizens. The impact of our national and local efforts has resulted in meals on wheels, drop in centers, volunteer visitors, retirement centers, more and improved nursing homes, visiting nurse programs, day care services, telephone counseling, counseling services, etc. All of which are directed toward making the latter years of human life more comforting and dignified.

Although a myriad of agencies and services have developed over the years, our senior citizens continue to be in need of spiritual comfort and the security of knowing that their church or religion of a life time is prepared to see them through their lonely years.

The Rev. Mr. Downing brings how the churches can broaden their role and services to senior citizens.

He was an OEO Deputy Director for four counties in South Dakota. While residing in Wisconsin he filled the following positions in addition to his pastoral duties: Member of Planning Committee for Food and Nutrition, President of Board for Community Development of Neighborhood Improvement in Milwaukee, planned, developed and directed a neighborhood center for children and senior citizens, member of advisory council for Milwaukee County Commission on Aging, President of Project Council for Elderly, Nutrition Program of Milwaukee, and then became a member of the state Planning Committee on Aging for the State of Wisconsin.

Presently, the Rev. Mr. Downing is chairman of the Human Development Committee, the Steering Committee for Developing Senior Citizens Drop-In-Center, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Lee County Council on Aging. He is also actively involved with the Northwestern Illinois Area Agency on Aging. Additionally he is active in the Mental Health Association of Lee County and the Lee County Welfare Council.

Award Winners

Sterling is top-rated at East Moline

By The Associated Press
Galesburg, upset winner over previously top-ranked Peoria Richwoods, and Aurora West were unanimous selections to capture sectional championships this week in the Class AA Illinois High School basketball tournament.

In a statewide Associated Press poll by a panel of 17 sportswriters and broadcasters, Galesburg was the solid choice to capture the Peoria Woodruff Sectional and Aurora West was the unanimous pick to win the Aurora East Sectional.

Decatur Eisenhower and Oak Park pulled 15 votes each to win their sectional tournaments while North Chicago, Marist and Niles West were heavy favorites with 13 votes each.

Thornridge, Elgin, Normal Community and Sterling also received strong backing.

Tough battles were forecast in sectionals at Rockford Jefferson, at Collinsville and at Benton.

Decatur Eisenhower was the choice at Springfield with host Springfield getting two votes and Paris and Taylorville both shutout. Oak Park claimed all but two votes at Hinsdale with one each going to Hinsdale Central and Fenton.

Thornridge collected 12 votes to win the Crete Sectional with St. Laurence receiving three and Bloom two. Elgin received 12 votes to win its own sectional with Chicago Weber named on five ballots.

Normal Community held an 11-6 edge over Joliet Central for the Normal Sectional and Sterling had the exact same edge over LaSalle-Peru in the East Moline Sectional.

At Rockford, McHenry and Guilford had seven votes each with Auburn receiving three. Centralia collected nine votes at Benton with Marion and Mount Vernon receiving four each.

Belleville West was a slight choice over Alton at Collinsville. West received nine votes to seven for Alton and one for Edwardsville.

Girls lose two

STERLING—Marche Harris dropped in 18 points, Fran Smith 15, Karen McKinzie 13, and Dawn Smith 10, here, Monday night to pace the Sterling girls interscholastic varsity basketball team to a 59-40 victory over Dixon.

Roy Bridgeman, Dixon varsity coach, commented, "I thought we played well but they were too quick and too tall for us. Fran Smith is a 6'3" sophomore who rebounded well."

Harris had 10 points and Fran Smith eight in a 21-12 third-quarter blitz by the home team. Dawn Smith had four baskets during the second stanza. Donna Pinegar, who tied Betsy Flanagan with 10 points each to lead Dixon, picked up four buckets in the final quarter.

Dixon drops to 6-4 with the loss and will travel to Streator today.

Grady Daniels readies for Golden Gloves meet

Grady Daniels, 24, has entered the Golden Gloves Tournament to be held this weekend in Springfield to earn the right to advance to National competition at Miami Beach later this month.

Daniels, who trains at the gym area of the Medusa Cement plant, has been boxing for five years. In that span, Daniels has recorded 46 wins in 49 outings.

Boxers from the state of Illinois will be involved this weekend so Daniels is uncertain of whether he will begin competition Saturday or Sunday. The number of entries will determine the number of bouts necessary to determine a champion at the Springfield Armory.

The Illinois champion will then be eligible for National competition on March 23-25. Daniels fits a four-hours-a-day workout schedule around a job at Northwestern Steel and Wire in Sterling.

Daniels, trained by George Reed, has been in training for the past six weeks in preparation for the state meet.

Durr signs tennis pact with WTT

OAKLAND (AP)—Francoise Durr, France's top-ranked singles player, signed a two-year World Team Tennis contract Monday with the Golden Gaters.

Miss Durr, who was a WTT all-star selection last season with the Phoenix club, won three of four matches last year against Billie Jean King, who had the league's best singles record.

With the Golden Gaters, Miss Durr joins Betty Stove, a frequent doubles partner in past tournaments. The Stove-Durr team was ranked No. 1 on the women's pro tour last year.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) —

The continuing contract deadlock between major league baseball players and owners has caused the Pittsburgh Pirates to cancel four more exhibition games.

Pirate General Manager Joe L. Brown said Monday he had called off games scheduled for Friday with the Chicago White Sox, Saturday and Sunday with the Cincinnati Reds, and next Monday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates said last week they were canceling their first two games, both with the White Sox, scheduled for this Wednesday and Thursday.

In announcing the latest action, Brown repeated an earlier statement that any future cancellations would be decided on a day-to-day basis.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) —

Creston Wiley scored eight points in the second half to help the University of British Columbia to a 16-3 victory over Oregon State University in a Northwest Collegiate Rugby League game Monday.

British Columbia led 4-3 at the half on a try by Will Mackenzie that was not converted. Oregon State scored on a penalty kick by John Overone.

In the second half, Wiley collected six points on two penalty kicks a conversion after a try by Henry Edmonds.

John Kemp is NCIC first team

Mendota senior guard Tom Cassidy was the only unanimous selection on the North Central Illinois Conference All-Conference basketball team announced Monday. John Kemp of Dixon was one of 10 players on the first team.

La Salle-Peru, Sterling and Ottawa placed two players each on the top squad. Dave Stockwell and Craig DeWitt were the Golden Warriors named while Don Slusarek and Glenn Mudge represent L.P. Ottawa selections were Craig McCormick and Mike Purcell. Craig Vorhies of Princeton and Hall's Mark Lucas round out the first team. Kewanee had three selections on the second squad including Tom Prusator, Brad Cernovich and Tom Sullivan.

Streator was represented by Don Goerne and Dale Goerne. Mark Holdorf from Sterling, Rochelle's Jay Friestad, Ottawa's Buzz Strickland, Dave Lowdermilk of Princeton and Mendota's Rob Rebholz complete the second squad.

Players make pitch

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring is the time of optimism in the baseball world, when there are no losses and everybody has a chance to have some fun in the sun.

This season there has been no spring, only a continuation of winter, and the prospects for an immediate thaw in the situation appears about as likely as Commissioner Bowie Kuhn inviting Marvin Miller to toss out the first ball of the regular season.

If there is a first ball. The owners and players are so wide apart as they head into their 26th negotiating session today that a group of some 25 veteran players has made its own pitch to Miller, executive director of the Players Association.

The players' meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla., called at the request of Cincinnati Reds slugger Johnny Bench, was for the purpose of gaining some information.

"Maybe if we all get together we can make more progress on this thing," Bench said before the 15-minute meeting. "I want to find out what's really going on."

"I have to admit I am confused. Besides, I want to know who's telling him (Miller) what to ask for. The majority of the guys down here are leaders on their clubs and I thought it would be a good idea if we got together and discussed the situation."

At the conclusion of the session, held at Tom Seaver's unofficial practice camp, the players asked Seaver and Joe Torre of the New York Mets to ask Miller if he could set up a meeting between the 24 player representatives and the club owners.

"They are concerned that the owners are not getting accurate reports," Miller said. "It (the request) was in the vein of 'Let's see if we can make sure there's communication.'"

Miller promptly invited the 24 owners to meet with the association's executive board Thursday in Tampa, Fla. John J. Gaherin, the owners' representative, said the invitation would be discussed at today's session.

Miller said the players getting involved in the actual negotiations was "a fine idea," but when asked if it would stimulate a solution to the unproductive negotiations, he said, "probably not, but when you're stuck, you try everything."

The fact that there is a 26th bargaining session is about the only cause for optimism in the dispute that caused the owners to close the spring training camps indefinitely and had negotiators for both sides trading accusations after their last meeting on Friday.

As Bench learned from Monday's meeting, the issue dividing the parties is a thorny one. "I thought it was just a problem they had in negotiating," Bench said. "But I can see now it's a complex legal problem."

That legal dispute involves the issue of retroactivity, whether Miller can strip the players of their free agency rights won in a landmark arbitration case last December.

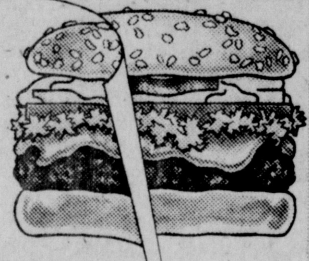

The owners say Miller's role as exclusive bargaining agent for the players gives him the obligation to bargain for a new labor contract for all the players, even if that opens the union to potential damage suits.

But Miller says he can't retroactively strip away the players' rights to free agency, rights which are contained in every 1976 individual contract.

Miller says that since the owners are the ones seeking changes in arbitrator Peter Seitz' decision, they should assume the liability of damage suits. The owners have refused, saying it was Miller's responsibility.

Miller says the vast majority of the players would not seek legal damages but there are some who would.

Get $100 Worth of IH Parts...FREE!

During the Month of PLISK

PLISK? It's really a combination of "plow" and "disk," because we are making a very special offer during the entire month of March, 1976. Buy an IH Model 510 or 710 plow, or a 350 or 370 or 470 disk during this period and you get $100 worth of genuine IH parts absolutely free. Check out our great IH tillage tools now. And figure out which free parts you're going to take home, too. Whatever happened to March? PLISK happened. And you'll think it's terrific.
